DEMOCRATIC PROGRAM DIFFERS FROM TAFT'S

President Wants Reciprocity and Tariff Commission--Democrats Want Tariff Schedules Reduced--Some Tariff Commission History Recalled--Anecdote of Sen. Harris.

By Ralph M. Whiteside.
Special to The Telegram.

Washington, April 1.—When Congress meets next week there will begin a game of politics which will be well worth watching. Both Democrats and Republicans realize that the presidential election in 1912 will be largely influenced by what will be done in the next few months in Washington and they will play the game with all the skill that's in them. The people may or may not benefit by the struggle. It all depends on the point of view.

President Taft has made it pretty clear what he desires to have done by the special session. Here is the program in brief:

Passing of the Canadian Reciprocity agreement.

Making of the Tariff Commission permanent.

Adjournment.

He favors tariff revision but only after the tariff commission has had an opportunity to investigate and report.

The Democratic leaders have an entirely different program which they will endeavor to carry out regardless of the president's views. They are willing to give Mr. Taft his Canadian reciprocity and may give him the tariff commission but they do not propose to postpone tariff revision; on the contrary it is the present purpose to take up first, the wool schedule, then cotton; after that, the others affecting commonly used necessities of life in the order in which it may be decided they are most important. That order has not been determined as yet. The list, however, will include steel, lumber, sugar, and probably some others.

In fact the Democrats do not take much stock in the tariff commission idea. It is pointed out that this experiment was tried in 1882 and was a most dismal failure.

After an expenditure of considerable time and money, a report was submitted to Congress. It occupied nearly 3,000 printed pages. There was no question as to the thoroughness and value of the work, and yet, when it had all been done, Congress paid no more attention to it than if it had been a report upon the planet Mars. The facts, figures, and conclusions of the commission were absolutely ignored. This, too, in face of the fact that the commission reported that it had "been governed solely by its own views of justice, expediency, and a regard for the interests of consumers and the public sentiment of the country." To show how history repeats itself, it may be added that "early in its deliberations the commission became convinced that a substantial reduction of tariff duties is demanded, not by a mere indiscriminate popular clamor, but by the best conservative opinion of the country," and that "such a reduction of the existing tariff the commission regards not only as a due recognition of public sentiment and a measure of justice to consumers, but one conducive to general industrial prosperity."

This nonpartisan commission, like the tariff board of today, placed the revision of the tariff upon the high plane of public welfare; but Congress, as if to emphasize its disregard of the commission's labors, proceeded to enact a tariff bill which was not based in the slightest degree upon the investigation which had been made.

"When I hear that Newell Sanders, the Republican leader of Tennessee, is in Washington, I always recall one memorable trip he made here from home," remarked George Crumbliss, from the eastern Tennessee region. "Some years ago, when Sanders was not so well known in our State as now, he was on a train coming to Washington with Col. Sanford, another eminent Republican. Although they had lived long in the State, neither one had ever met the veteran Democratic senator, Isham G. Harris, whose home was at Memphis, in the extreme Western end of a very long and narrow state.

"On the occasion of their trip they sat in the smoking room of the Pullman and discussed from a Republican standpoint the sad lack of statesmanship in Tennessee. Possibly they were prejudiced and rather partisan, but they didn't mince their metaphors a little bit in describing the Democratic representation at Washington. As they gossiped a tall old man came into the smoking compartment, took a drink—possibly of water—and smoked a cigar. Sanders and Sanford kept up their criticism of the Tennessee Democrats in Congress, lamenting that Senator Bate, while a good old man, was too old for the job, and that Senator Harris was a worn out old Confederate soldier, who had no especial qualification for a place in the Senate.

"The stranger apparently had paid no attention to the talk until the verbal castigation of Isham G. Harris. Then he arose and poured upon the astonished Sanders and Sanford the vials of a pent-up wrath, and then some. A terrific fusillade of invective, denunciation and condensed damnation made the car tremble as the old man vented his hatred of Republicans in general and of Tennessee Republicans in particular. Once he subsided a little to catch his breath, the Republican leaders found courage to ask:

"And who are you that you feel called upon to defend the Democrats of Tennessee?"

"I am Isham G. Harris, by Jupiter, and if these windows were big enough I would pitch both of you out into the blackness of night."

"Then came some apologies and explanations from Sanford and Sanders, who produced a proposition in glass that made them all good friends before they reached Washington. But, ever after, they were a bit careful in discussing statesmen, young or old, before strangers in a sleeping car smoking room."

WHILE CORRIGAN TALKED RAID WAS EXECUTED

Sensational Speech of New Yorker at Banquet Had Impressive Setting.

By Publishers' Press.

New York City, April 1.—In an address this afternoon Magistrate Corrigan severely arraigned the administration of Mayor Gaynor, and especially the police department, for the alleged wide open condition of the city. Corrigan was speaking at the luncheon of the City Club, and at five o'clock, the hour when his address was being delivered, Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn was leading a raid on an alleged gambling house situated within a block and a half of the club.

Numbers of persons left the banquet table to join a crowd estimated at five thousand persons, which watched the raid.

In his address Justice Corrigan charged that gambling houses are "operating unmolested and that there are 800 unlicensed saloons in the city."

Registration

Will be Heavy

The registrars were at the polling places yesterday and were kept quite busy by the people desiring to get their names enrolled on the registration books, preliminary to participating in the primary and general election for the selection of commissioners provided under the new charter. A new registration is required and it is believed that between fifteen hundred and two thousand people will register. The books will be open at the polling places each afternoon this week and all day Saturday.

PATRONAGE JOBS CUT ONE-FOURTH BY DEMOCRATS

First Act of Democrats was to Cut Down Expenses to Amount of $182,880—New Officials Elected by Caucus.

By Publishers' Press.

Washington, April 1.—The first act of the Democrats of the House of the Sixty-second Congress, assembled in caucus today, was to abolish about one fourth of the patronage jobs in the House, at a saving of approximately $120,880 also to discontinue six committees, a saving of $12,000, and to abandon the Republican practice of allowing all employees in the House a month's extra pay, a saving of $50,000. This will make a total saving of approximately $182,880 per annum. The expense account for employees under the Republican House was about $780,000 annually.

The caucus tonight elected South Trimble, of Frankfort, Ky., a member of the Fifty-seventh Congress, clerk of the new Democratic House. U. S. Jackson, of Indiana, was elected sergeant-at-arms and Joseph J. Simmott, of Virginia, was elected doorkeeper of the House.

The committees abolished by the caucus were Pacific Railroads, Mississippi River Levees, Militia, Private Land Claims, Manufacturers, Ventilation acoustics.

By Publishers' Press.

San Francisco, Cal., April 1.—Mrs. John D. Powell, who was arrested on suspicion, confessed today that she entered into a compact with Dr. L. C. Chisholm to murder her husband for his insurance money. Powell's body was found March 19th in a cabin in an out of the way place. Chisholm is in jail. The woman was going under the name of Blanch McCurdy when arrested.

County Commissioners Meet Again Monday

The regular monthly meetings of the county commissioners will be held tomorrow and Tuesday. In addition to electing a chairman of the board the matter of establishing the new county court will be decided and an attorney elected to prosecute criminal actions that may come before the court.

The commissioners will also appoint assistant tax assessors, the law requiring that one be appointed from each township to assist the county assessor, who is selected by the corporation commission. Bids for the new annex will be opened and the contract awarded. It is hoped to have the building completed by early fall.

Municipal Fight in Chicago will End on Tuesday

By Publishers' Press.

Chicago, April 1.—One of the most exciting municipal campaigns in the history of Chicago will come to an end Tuesday when the voters of the city will decide on new officials. The campaign virtually came to a close tonight. The Republicans with Charles E. Merriam, a reform candidate, are claiming a majority of from 10,000 to 35,000. The Democrats with Carter H. Harrison, as standard bearer, are claiming a plurality of from 30,000 to 50,000. Both sides have been waging a hot campaign and there are charges of treachery on both sides.

Tom. L. Johnson's Condition Improving

By Publishers' Press.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 1.—William J. Bryan, who was enroute to Zanesville, stopped here today to call on Tom L. Johnson. On leaving the chamber of Mr. Johnson and in response to a question as to the sick man's condition, Mr. Bryan replied, "He is feeling fine."

"For a spring chicken, madam," said Dawson, "I must confess that I consider this a pretty tough bird."

"Yes, Mr. Dawson," replied the landlady, amiably, "but you must remember that we had a pretty tough spring."

Diaz in Message Pleads for Reforms in Administration

By Publishers' Press.

Mexico City, April 1.—Mexico, through its administration, has made overtures of peace, and tonight peace and security are promised even though disorder should follow.

President Diaz in his message read before Congress tonight promises his sincere and complete support to the creation of the anti-election laws, applying from the Chief Executive down to minor elective officers. This has been the chief demand of the Madero followers. He also advocates legislation that will cure present evils in the administration of courts and the curbing of the enormous power of the Jefe Police and minor officials. Diaz demands legislation that will provide for the cutting down of many large land holdings so it will be easy for people to acquire titles to small farms. He strongly urges ballot reforms and freedom of elections to all qualified voters.

Campaign Closed Last Night in Blaze of Enthusiasm Aroused by Greensboro's Contribution and Plan to Supplement Fund, Which May Reach $100,000.

According to Advertisement.

A New Yorker owning a country place near the city engaged a stable-boy. During his last stay at the place the owner did not see the boy for several days. Finally, however, having special need of the lad, it occurred to him that the stable-boy was not exactly "on the job."

"Where the deuce do you keep yourself?" demanded the master of the place. "I don't believe I've seen you since you were engaged. Have you been asleep all this winter?"

"Yes, sir," was the unexpected response. "I thought that was what you wanted, sir."

"What I wanted!" exclaimed the employer, amazed. "What are you driving at?"

"Well, sir," explained the lad, "your advertisement said you wanted a boy of 16, to sleep on the premises."

SHOOT TO KILL IS ORDER OF GOVERNOR

Governor of New Mexico will Pardon Officers if They Kill Kidnappers.

By Publishers' Press.

Las Vegas, New Mexico, April 1.—Governor Mills has ordered the officers in pursuit of the kidnappers, who secured $12,000 from A. T. Rogers for the return of his two years old son, after the child had been kidnapped, to shoot to kill should they overtake the outlaws.

"I will pardon you," is the statement made by the Governor in delivering this injunction to the officers. Under the circumstances it is probable that short work will be made of the outlaws if they are overtaken by their pursuers and show fight.

Tom Breen, a cowboy, has been arrested as a suspected accomplice of the kidnappers.

Special To Telegram.

Raleigh, April 1.—In the final rally tonight closing the campaign for a building fund for the Y. M. C. A. a telegram was read from Andrew Joyner of Greensboro, stating that fifty citizens of that city pledged $500 to the cause with the desire to head a supplementary fund to be raised in the State outside of Raleigh. The idea of the Greensboro contributors is that the people of the entire State should contribute to the Y. M. C. A. fund as an expression of their interest in and appreciation of the capital city and the hospitality it so generously accords to all the people of North Carolina at all times.

News of the Greensboro donation and its accompanying telegram were received with enthusiasm by the triumphant workers who have pledged during the campaign the sum of $75,454, instead of $65,000, the sum originally planned to secure.

Raleigh's eight days' campaign closed tonight with the above result, and everybody is happy. It was a carefully planned and splendidly conducted campaign and the result shows what Raleigh can do when aroused.

The Greensboro Movement.

The movement started in Greensboro, referred to above, is one having for its purpose the raising of an additional $25,000 in the State outside of Raleigh, to be added to the fund secured in that city for the Y. M. C. A. building. It is to be an expression of the interest the people of the State feel in Raleigh and to materially assist in building there one of the most magnificent Y. M. C. A. structures in the South. Greensboro feels that Raleigh ought to have a building costing not less than $100,000; and as this city is given to action in such cases, the sum of $500 is contributed to start this additional fund.

It is the desire of the Greensboro contributors that Gen. Julian S. Carr of Durham be selected to take charge of the matter of raising this fund.

The telegram sent to Raleigh by Andrew Joyner for Greensboro reads as follows:

"Recognizing that every public building, every church, every social, business or fraternal institution in Raleigh are privileges and advantages to all the citizens of North Carolina, realizing that courtesies are always extended with kind and discreet hospitality by citizens of the capital city to all visitors, I am instructed by 50 citizens here, to ask that Greensboro be allowed to contribute the sum of five hundred dollars to the Y. M. C. A. building fund, payable November 1, 1911.

"This is desired to be the nucleus for a supplementary fund to the amount raised by Raleigh to be known as 'The State at large contributions.' Many other cities, and hundreds of well-wishers all over the State, we believe, would gladly contribute to this fund, thus insuring a building and equipment less liable to be overtaken by privileges extended students in Raleigh from our homes, and visitors at all times from all parts of this and other state, who will share its accommodations and blessings. I am further authorized to suggest that a campaign to increase this outside fund be permitted, and to nominate General Julian S. Carr of Durham as chairman, with request that he immediately begin a campaign to secure contributions for this supplementary fund, heading the list with Greensboro's contribution.

"Greensboro has watched your campaign this week with great interest and heartfelt sympathy, and views your magnificent achievement with 'delight and admiration.'"

Complete history of New York State is made impossible by the destruction of documents and papers, which cannot be replaced, in the capitol fire at Albany. Perhaps it is just as well not to have a complete history of New York, and one of the things which will doubtless be omitted anyway is a detailed account of the building of the capitol.

There are five hundred official positions at the disposal of the Democratic majority in Congress, and there are fifty thousand applicants for the jobs, it is said. Democratic hunger for pie may be attributed to the fact that it has been many years since the party had the distribution of this delicacy; but it is not probable that Democrats as a whole are more averse to pie diet than Republicans.

We think we have some politics down South, and frequently hear people talking about the rottenness of conditions and the dirtiness of our political campaigns. Political campaigns in this section are clean and also tame, compared with political fights in the North and West. Even as far South as Baltimore they do more fighting and dirty work in one campaign than is done in the worst city further South in a decade.

Communications

An April Fool.

I beg to say through The Telegram that I will not enter the campaign now on for Mayor and Commissioner of Public Acts, and thank all who have said privately or through the papers that they would support me for the important position. I am not supporting any special man or men for the position to be filled and would like to see others in the race, so that from an abundance of good material we may select the best. I would like to know how the candidates stand on the following questions of public interest:

1st. Our water supply comes from Horsepen creek, one of the filthiest creeks in the county and a few miles above where we take up the water. Guilford College empties her sewerage into said stream. If our water mains were extended 50 to 75 feet further we could get our water from Reedyfork a stream into which no sewer is emptied. I am told that the city of Greensboro is and has been paying to have the Reedyfork water shed inspected and as a matter of fact this cost has been useless for under ordinary circumstances as the water pipes are now laid we do not get a gallon of Reedy Fork water.

2nd. The meat inspection ordinance should be either repealed or so amended as to permit inspection of the meats inside the market. I have had spoiled meats sent to me twice since this ordinance has been in force and am told by the inspector that he can only put his stamp on a carcass condemning same but cannot go into the market and interfere with the sale of meats that may be damaged.

3rd. It is a cause of common complaint among the tax payers of the city that property in the business portions of our city, is not assessed as high in proportion to its rental or sales value as residence and especially suburban property and that in return special attention is paid to streets within the business and principal resident sections and practically no attention given to many other streets, especially in the colored districts.

It is a fact that many streets have been accepted by the city and so neglected that they have been and are now in an unsafe condition for use especially at night. The city has within the last few months paid from the tax payers fund one judgment of $2,500 cost as a result of a man being hurt on one of our streets and at this time a suit is being brought asking for $5,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained in the use of a badly neglected street. Give us an equal and fair assessment of all real estate and in return give to the taxpayers, white or black, at least a safe highway to his property. I the candidates will express themselves on the above propositions many of us will be better able to decide who we will support in the coming election.

O. J. DENNY.

ABEL G. KIRKMAN

AN APPRECIATION.

I have been asked to say a word about the life and character of Abel G. Kirkman. I understand the difficulties that confront any one that undertakes such a task. Here was a man who lived a Christian life in a lofty sense of that term—and lived it in the open; so that he who would come to tell his neighbors and the people of his county any thing about the man, comes to a people who already know all he has to tell. For as this man went in and out among us serving his day and generation, did any of us ever doubt his honesty? Did it ever occur to any one that there was any qualification to his integrity? Did any of us his county men, who knew the man discount his Christianity? Perhaps not one. It seemed natural for "Uncle Abe" to live the Christian. As natural as to breathe the pure air of heaven. He went quietly doing good. He preached, to be sure, but not with ostentation. The people heard him gladly because they believed in him and loved him. He did not let his right hand know what his left hand did. He gave away the best of his income yearly, while in office. Did a friend lose his house or barn by fire? Did a poor man lose his horse or cow? The next mail was apt to bring a check signed by A. G. Kirkman as an expression of sympathy. A few examples. I was sitting in his office one day, a poor widow came in to have a paper recorded. She handed him the fee which he returned, and putting his hand into his own pocket he handed her a dollar of his own money saying, "Buy books for your children to go to school." On the campaign one day he stopped at the forks of the road and motioned to some of us to follow him. Driving up to a small log house he hitched and said to us to do the same. He went in followed by the others. A bed-ridden man lay sick. He talked to him awhile, called for the Bible read and led in prayer. Arising he put a dollar in his hat and without a word passed it around for other contributions. Then quickly bidding him and his family good-by we drove away. The man was a Republican and had been a Democrat could not have gone to the polls. I mention this for some one might suggest that "Uncle Abe," had method and an ulterior purpose. No one who knew him well believed that. A few days later, I was riding with him and we stopped at the house of an aged widow. He knew the poor better than he did the rich. He was late but he took the time to talk and when we rose to say good-by, he stood and offered prayer. The prayer was simple and charged with truth and faith in a very personal providence. Right living had become a habit with Rev. A. G. Kirkman. If life had any storms and stress of weather to him, the vessel of his faith was so large and substantially built it rode out the storm, as even of keel as weaker crafts sail the glossy seas. He had afflictions, however; but bore them without complaint. In this respect few of his friends realized the severity of that affliction which ended his useful life.

These things by him were "Counted but light afflictions but for a season." For years he preached every Sunday; he taught his Sunday school class; he conducted funerals; he married the poor; he visited the sick. Indeed, the county has had no more useful citizen, within his limitations, in its whole history.

He loved children, and always had his pockets full of candy for them, which he freely distributed. He did this the day following the election just as the day before. In stating these things, I am aware that my readers in Guilford know all these things as well as the writer—some of them better.

As to Mr. Kirkman's public service, it may be said to have been such a service as might have been expected from such a man. No breath of suspicion is upon his record. He was methodical and painstaking. He kept open house to political friends and foes alike. His defeat after twenty-four years of public life hurt him very much. Not because he cared for office for its own sake but because he thought many loyal friends of other days had deserted him. They had not done so in any real personal sense; but there had come a party feeling that he ought to step aside. He did not understand it; to his honest eyes, it did not appear why the service he had rendered so faithfully should not entitle him to the continued confidence of his fellows. His was the common mistake of over estimating the amount of gratitude in human nature. He wanted to die with the harness on; for he loved his work and his people. I think he came better to understand that it was no lack of affection on the part of the people that he was not accorded another term. At any rate there were many sad hearts, that the primary went against him, and that sorrow was shared profoundly by some who did not support him, but knew his worth of character.

One man said: "We don't get good men in office any too often, and I'll never vote to turn one out." Another said: "I expect to continue voting for 'Uncle Abe' as long as he lives, and after his death as long as I live, whether his name is on the ticket or not." Such was the man we know him: Not militant, but upright; not words so much, but deeds; not proclaiming his own righteousness, but quietly going about doing good. He illustrated in his every day life James' definition of pure religion: "To visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction and to keep himself unspotted from the world." J. ALLEN HOLT.

SWEDEN'S TRIAL OF PROHIBITION.

A Chapter in the Story of a World-Wide Fight.

(BY EARNEST GORDON.)

Readers of The National Prohibitionist are aware of the fact that during the five weeks of the Swedish general strike in the summer of 1909 all sale of drink throughout the nation was prohibited. The result justified any and every extreme anticipation, which any prohibitionist ever gave utterance to. Drunkenness literally ceased; crime sank to a record minimum. Converts to the prohibitory idea were made by the tens of thousands. Those five weeks were worth years of the most zealous and self-sacrificing paper agitation.

Among other documents from this blessed interim period in the activities of the Swedish poisoner is the following report of a Salvation Army lassie engaged in slum work in Stockholm. It is a convincing statement of what prohibition can do, and what some good day, in God's providence, it is going to do both in Sweden and in America. Says our lassie:

"The women of the poor were delighted. Men who formerly were wont to be at home neither night nor day, and when they did come were such a terror to wife and children that these were forced to flee to neighbors, were absolutely changed persons under prohibition. When they went off with their families on excursions in the woods about Stockholm during the strike days, the children could hardly realize that these were their own fathers."

One dreadful drunkard said to the Salvation lassie, "It would be fine if this could go on now that we have got used to living without drink."

Another ragged dirty fellow with whom the sister was ashamed to speak on the street—his rags hardly covering his body—became in prohibition days an absolutely different man, washed, clothed and decent, sitting with his family at home.

When asked if re-opening of the Gothenburg system man-traps had made itself felt in her work the lassie replied, "Yes." She said that several cases of fathers taking and selling children's clothes for drink had come to her ears. One woman for whom the slum sister had received a warm dress, did not wear it, but had it locked up in a neighbor's closet. Her husband had struck and abused her in order to get it to sell. During the strike much clothing had gone through this lassie's hands for strikers' families. Since the system's shops re-opened, there were many reports of the pawning of these things by drunken fathers.

One case mentioned was especially interesting. A country laborer having saved a little money took a trip to Stockholm, during the first week of the strike to "blow it in." But when he got to the city, he found that the Gothenburg shops were all closed. At first he hardly knew what to do. Then the idea struck him of buying new clothes and a pair of shoes. After this he went to the Salvation Army restaurant to get dinner.

He told his story and what a new experience it was to have new shoes on his feet. The like had not happened for years. He had fifteen kroner in his pocket, too!

A Stockholm policeman writing to the press, expressed the same satisfaction with the five weeks of the prohibition era. Here again the striking contrast in conditions under the Gothenburg system, and under prohibition jumps at one's eyes. He says:

"The police usually have a stiff job to keep order when the drink-shops are open. It is impossible to arrest all the intoxicated, for we should have no place to lodge them. Those we take must often be dragged stationward in the most repulsive way, and in their cells their action is that of beasts. These are the normal conditions in Stockholm, where every eighth man of age is arrested per year for drunkenness."

"How different in the prohibition period. During the 22 years of my connection with the police force, I have never experienced from the point of view of public order, such an idyllic time."

"We had expected that when the strike was declared masses of men would pour into the drink-shops and there become raging from drink. But fortunately the authorities took the simple precaution of closing the shops. As a result men comported themselves as men and not as wild creatures. There was a peaceful, almost holiday, atmosphere. The quiet was astonishing. People could hardly realize that a prohibition enactment could be so effective. During August the Stockholm arrests for drunkenness fell from 1,545 to 161!"

Helsingborg in South Sweden, lies just opposite the Danish City, Helsingor (the Elsinore of Hamlet). Many strikers went across the ferry to get spirits. The result was that ninety-two arrests of drunken Swedes were made on the boat alone.

"The prohibition period" has been followed by "the prohibition referendum." The 500,000 organized temperance workers of Sweden set in motion an unofficial plebiscite on the question of the desirability of adopting national prohibition in the near future. Here too, again, the results have been both astonishing and encouraging. The majorities for prohibition have been overwhelming. If the Swedish parliament would give the people the opportunity, breweries, distilleries and the nampy-pamby Gothenburg system would be all swept into the sea in short order. But as in England the upper house, with its distillers, bishops, land-monopolists and other reactionaries, blocks the way. Yet, even these must yield sooner or later to the tremendous prohibition sentiment, which the five weeks awakened.

An Address to the People By Anti-Saloon League Superintendent.

To the Friends of Temperance and Good Government:

North Carolina now has written upon her statute books laws, which prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor, lays the responsibility upon citizens and officers in every community to execute these laws. Let no one believe for one minute that the lawless liquor traffic has a conscience that will lead them voluntarily to obey. The experience of all law-abiding communities teach us that is necessary to use the strong arm of the law and compel obedience. The way the average citizen in our country enforces law is by electing officers, who stand for enforcement, and just at this time, I want to emphasize the necessity of citizens using their franchise in the election of the right sort of officers. It is not enough that we have good laws, we must have faithful and efficient officers to make these laws effective, and the making of the officers lies with citizens.

During this spring, many towns and cities will be electing their officers, and now is the time for our temperance forces to be at work. See to it that such men are nominated and elected as will guarantee the execution of law. It is the duty of every citizen to give some time and attention to the matter of civil government, and it shows a lack of patriotism, if not selfishness, for men to be so wrapped up in personal or business affairs that they will not give some thought to the selection and election of men, who are to manage their local government.

If the enforcement of the prohibition law in your community is not what it ought to be, see that you use your influence to secure officers, who will make it good and then give them your full support, as they make an honest effort to be true to their official trust.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Be Sure It Is A Cable

Unscrupulous piano salesmen and tuners of this section have not the ability or enough of the confidence of the public to dissatisfy a Cable owner. We are glad to have salesmen or tuners open Cable pianos and show the customer any defects of the instrument. It is scientifically constructed and any purchaser will see that it is a piano built to last a lifetime.

We have never had any complaints from a purchaser of a Cable piano that they had found broken strings or glue that the manufacturer had left in the piano; neither do we find tacks, as the Cable action is not tacked together. GRADUATION GOWN.

A Simple and Girlish
Design For the Event.

Yes, it is rather early in the season to talk of graduation gowns, but tempus has a fashion of fugiting quicker than schedule time in these strenuous days, so before one has a chance to turn around the sweet girl "grad" will be needing her new gown. The illustration shows a delightfully simple and girlish design for the occasion. The tunic lacing is one of the noticeable features, and altogether the gown is "sweetly pretty," as our English cousins say.

Boudoir Sets For Summer.
The new spring lines in fancy boudoir sets, including sofa pillows, scarfs, bags, pincushions and a large number of practical articles, are brought out in particularly attractive materials and with pretty minor variations in the way of trimming, which makes them very fascinating to women in general, says the Dry Goods Economist.

One of the daintiest of boudoir sets is shown in white cotton voile, with a pink ribbon design running through it and large pink roses placed on the ribbon at intervals in border effect.

This design adapts itself admirably to the various methods of trimming. Cut into strips the material is used as an attractive border all around the square pillow or in two vertical borders across the long pillow. The long pincushion and corset bag have this border running through the center.

An effective new trimming that is a revival of an old mode, old enough, however, to be again called new, is the fringe and passementerie border of macrame cord. By the way, wide bands of lace crocheted in fine macrame cord, copying venise patterns, are being used as high style dress trimmings, and this is probably responsible for the reappearance of this kind of work in the fancy goods department.

New Combination Footwear.
One of the latest hints from Paris is the flowered stocking combined for effect with the gemmed slipper. The designer of this pretty combination made richly embroidered stockings, the figures being flowers of any kind to suit the wearer's fancy, and set

OWERS ON STOCKINGS, GEMS ON TOES.
Gems in the toe part of the velvet slippers. Only the rich, of course, can afford highly gemmed slippers, but the befowered hosiery is cheaper and may be had at a nominal cost, though some of the designs are very elaborate and are priced high.

Creased Garments.
Clothes packed away during the summer are often very creased. To remove the creases hang the articles on a clothesline in the bathroom, shut door and window, turn on the hot water tap to fill the room with steam and leave the clothes for an hour or two. Afterward dry in the open air if possible.

A Little Want Ad Will Save You Many a Step.

A Pueblo Dance.

The fleeka or arrow dance is picturesque as practiced by the Pueblo Indians in Arizona. One of the braves is led before his friends, who are drawn up in two ranks. Here he is placed on one knee, bow and arrow in his hand, when the Malinchi, a handsomely attired young girl, commences the dance. From her right wrist hangs the skin of a silver gray fox, and bells that jangle with every motion are fastened to the end of her embroidered scarf.

At first the maiden dances along the line in front, by her movements describing the warpath. Slowly, steadily, she pursues; then suddenly her step quickens as she comes in sight of her enemy. The brave follows her with his eye and by the motion of his head implies that she is right. She dances faster and faster, then suddenly seizes the arrow from him and by frantic gestures makes it plain that the fight has begun in earnest. She points with the arrow, shows how it cuts its course, how the scalp was torn and her tribe victorious. As she concludes her dance she returns the arrow to the brave. Firearms are discharged, and the whole party wends its way to the public square to make room for other parties, who keep up the dance until dark.—Chicago News.

Riddlemeere.

Why is a coward like a leaky barrel? They both run.

What is that which never asks questions, yet requires many answers? The doorbell.

What is that which goes up the hill and down the hill and yet stands still? The road.

What ship is it that no woman objects to embark in? Courtship.

What is that which is full of holes and yet holds water? A sponge.

A Piece of Candy.

Who says candy is not good to eat? Mrs. Sarah Bush, who lives in Kirkwood, Pa., likes candy, and she often gets some to eat. She bought some a week or so ago and ate part of it. She began on another piece, and her teeth crunched on something hard. A piece of nutshell? Oh, no; it was not a piece of nutshell. It was a diamond, that's all, and it looked as if it might have come from a ring worn by the person that made the candy.

The Cattail.

The cattail of the American swamps is almost exactly the same plant as the Egyptian bulrush. It is no longer used for making paper as it once was, but from its root is prepared an astringent medicine, and its stems are used for the manufacture of mats, chair bottoms and the like.

Mrs. McTittle-Tattle—My dear, one-half of the world don't know how the other half lives!

Mrs. Cyenic—Well, it isn't your fault if they don't my dear!

Mamma—The baby has cried for hours. Does he need medicine or spanking?

Papa—You call up the doctor while I spank him.

TWO BEAUTIFUL HOMES AT AUCTION.

Whitsett is a beautiful and flourishing town in eastern Guilford, with a large boarding school, Whitsett Institute, with 250 students yearly. There are three churches, two good stores, livery, local and long distance telephones, etc. There are numbers of handsome and elegant homes in the place, and the town is growing rapidly. It is surrounded by a fine country with good macadam roads. No more progressive or beautiful place need be wanted for a delightful home.

Here's an opportunity for some one. On next TUESDAY, APRIL 4th, at 2 p. m., I will sell at public auction at Whitsett, Lacey Summers' handsome residence, with 1 1/4 acre lot. House contains seven rooms, and is one of the prettiest home places in the village.

I will also sell at the same time and place, D. E. Knight's commodious nine room residence, with an acre lot. Both places have the finest water and the best varieties of fruit and shade trees, which cannot be excelled anywhere. If you want a nice home in a thriving town where you can educate your children at the best school, here's your chance to get one at a bargain. Don't forget the date—Tuesday, April 4th next—will absolutely be sold to the last and highest bidder. Terms will be made to suit purchasers. Music by first-class brass band and we are expecting thousands of farmers to make it a big day. Free transportation will be furnished from Greensboro. Sale will be conducted by the Piedmont Realty & Auction Co., R. L. England, Auctioneer and Manager. 3-29-3t. Wed-Sun-Tues.

JEWELED DOG COLLARS.

Worn by Pampered Pets of Society Folk.

DOGGIES' EXPENSIVE COLLARS.

The fashion changes in dog collars not quite as often perhaps as in the clothes of the mistresses, but there are sharply defined rules concerning what is correct in canine collar adornment. The latest mode for these collars next spring is a bright green leather, and on the right shade of dog the effect is remarkably striking. Red collars are again in vogue for black coated doggies, and there is a model in silver beads that is much approved. A favorite collar of a dog in the toy class owned by a belle living at the national capital is of brown leather headed with silver nails. On the bangle which dangles from the collar are described the canine's name and address.

But the most curious dog collar on record was ordered by a Baltimore man to celebrate the eleventh birthday of his favorite black and tan terrier Dixie. The collar is of diamonds, of which no fewer than 700 were used. According to the illustration given of this collar, it was fashioned somewhat in the form of a tara, with a pendant consisting of two graduated pieces higher in the center and narrowing at the back.

Wouldn't You Like This Costume? Burton Holmes, the popular lecturer, seems to be quite as appreciative of the picturesque in costumes as in scenery. Behold him in the illustration arrayed in his latest sartorial find—a Moravian costume which in Moravia is worn by the men of this Austro-Hungary province.

What woman, seeing the modistic possibilities of this native dress, would not have purchased it, as did Mr. Holmes, for $9.48 of our money? This same woman would not allow her husband or brother to appear in it at a fancy dress party. Oh, no! Her motives would be less altruistic, much more selfish. This is what would happen: She would pick off, as it were, the leading motifs of this costume—for instance, the fascinating embroidered girdle with its long fringed ends. This lot she would wear about the waist of her new spring house frock of pale gray chiffon cloth. And the bolero, if this smart adornment answers to such a name in the Moravian tongue, she would incorporate into her smartest lingerie blouse of sheer marquisette. And the accordion platted sleeves, each plait of which is said to be three inches deep—well, these manches would make several summer gowns.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

A MAN can't understand why a woman fusses around with her face, but watch him hustle for help when he finds the thatch leaking atop his head.

Useless to try to make a married woman believe in masculine angels.

A woman blames mother-in-law for husband's shortcomings and daughter-in-law for son's.

It often costs a lot of hard cash to convince some men that they can't pick a winner.

When a man can't make a large enough fool of himself he gets a woman to help, and the community is usually satisfied with the result.

Most of the men who yell for opportunity wouldn't know one if it came under the guise of work.

When a woman can't think of anything else to do she worries because Johnny hasn't had measles yet.

Some Record.

An ingenious citizen of Virginia having stolen 1,000 chickens is rated as the champion chicken thief of the country. As he stole most of them one at a time he must have had some busy nights. But after a man has been at anything for a long while he begins to look on it as his trade, and probably our hero went to his task each night as cheerfully as the ordinary man trots off in the morning with his dinner pail.

He must have been at it nearly every night, for a man like that if he skipped one moonlight evening would hate to have his children crying for chicken and to hear his wife say: "There ain't none. Your pa was too lazy last night to bring one home."

Doubtless in time he felt that his calling was as legitimate as some of the trust magnates come to regard theirs.

Superior.
Since they beheld the jagged Alps,
Some miles below them now,
The flying men in search of scalps
Will show the comet how.

Wise Man.

"Say!"
"Yes."
"Do you settle your accounts every month?"
"I do."

"Why such strict rectitude?"
"I have to keep in practice or I would soon get out of the habit."

Club.

April 2, 1911.

(Copyright, 1910, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)
Elisha heals Naaman the Syrian.
2 Kings 5.
Golden Text.—Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth;
for I am God, and there is none else.
Isaiah xlv: 22.

(1.) Verse 1.—Who was Naaman and what were his characteristics?
(2.) Who was the King of Syria and Israel at this time?
(3.) Is sickness as likely to come to a great, as to an ordinary man?
(4.) Verses 2-4.—Who was the little maid referred to, and what apparent calamity had befallen her?
(5.) Do real calamities ever happen to real Christians?
(6.) Are children as good, or better, judges of spiritual truth as their seniors?

(7.) Is spiritual truth told second-hand as likely to be efficacious as when told with first-hand knowledge?
(8.) Verses 5-7.—Was the King of Syria actuated by selfish or benevolent motives, or both, in sending Na-man to be cured of his leprosy?
(9.) Is the motive of doing in order to getting necessarily an impure one?
(10.) What reason had the King of Israel for being afraid when he received the letter from the King of Syria?

(11.) When is it right, and when wrong, to be suspicious of the actions of others?

(12.) Is it true that the average man is suspicious, or distrustful, of his fellows, and why is it so?

(13.) What is great generosity in giving to others generally a sign of?

(14.) Verses 8-12.—Do good men exercise their powers for helpfullness to others with reluctance, or willingly, and why is it so?

(15.) Did Elisha, judged by Christian standards, act with sufficient courage in not going out to speak personally to such a noted man as Naaman?

(16.) Is it right or wrong, and why,
to show more courtesy or deference,
to noted people than we do to others?

(17.) To what extent was Naaman either right or wrong in being angry at the scant courtesy shown him by Elisha?

(18.) Verses 13-14.—Why, under the circumstances, was it natural that these servants should be better judges of Elisha's instructions than their master?

(19.) Why are sinners generally more willing to do some hard thing, than they are to comply with God's easy plan for their salvation? (This question must be answered in writing
by members of the club.)

(20.) Verses 15-17.—Did Naaman do right in offering a present and did Elisha do right in refusing it, and why?

(21.) Verses 18-19.—What reason is there to think that Naaman was truly converted?

(22.) Did Elisha approve of Na-man waiting upon his master, the king, while the latter was engaged in idolatrous worship?

(23.) Verses 20-27.—What is your view of the sin of Gehazi and its swift punishment?

A CAT'S POUTER.
They gathered in glee for the coasting,
With frolicsome frenzy athrill,
And Kitty, the beauty, came boasting
The finest fur coat on the hill.
But just where spectators were swarming
Miss Kitty was whirled from her seat
And found herself madly performing
The backslider's perilous feat.

She set up her back then. No wonder—
Her hair had been rubbed the wrong way.
Her head felt like splitting asunder;
Her coat was a mop, you might say.
Poor Thomas devotedly followed,
But Kitty was cross as could be
And hurried off home, where she swallowed
A cupful of hot catnip tea.

My seconds in it come,

To gladden heart and home,

Across the stormy foam
Came sturdy folk one faroff time
To find them hearth and home.

II.

Is dignity's in faroff land.
My next, a boy's contracted name,

Every man has one in this world and values it above all things, yet spends it ceaselessly. Never he chooses it, sometimes he loses it, often abuses it. He can trade it with no man, yet he may give it for another man. He lays it down, but cannot pick it up. It is within him, yet he passes straight through it. It is sometimes bitter, sometimes sweet, sometimes brief and sometimes long.
There is more of it for a baby than for anybody else, yet a baby has less of it. An old person has had more of it than anybody else, yet he has less of it. It is as frail as a taper light, yet it is a mighty force—a mystery, a paradox, a riddle no brain has ever solved.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

[This poem, written shortly after the great president's death and published in the Atlantic Monthly at the time, has been called one of the finest eulogies in all literature.]

KINDLY spirit! Ah, when did treason
Bid such a generous nature cease,
Mild by temper and strong by reason,
But ever leaning to love and peace?

A head how sober, a heart how spacious,
A manner equal with high or low,
Rough, but gentle, uncouth, but gracious,
And still inclining to lips of woe!

Patient when saddest, calm when stern-
est,
Grieved when rigid for justice's sake;
Given to jest, yet ever in earnest
If aught of right or truth were at stake.

Simple of heart, yet shrewd withal;
Slow to resolve, but firm to hold;
Still with parable and with myth
Seasoning truth, like them of old.
—Henry Howard Bonnell.

NANCY HANKS.

Rolling plains
Of billowy green,
Far horizon,
Blue, serene.

Lofty skies
Of glory clouds climb,
Where burning stars
Beat out the time.

These and the dreams
Of fathers bold,
Baffled longings,
Hopes untold,

Gave to you
A heart of fire,
Love like deep waters,
Brave desire.

Ah, when youth's rapture
Went out in pain
And all seemed over
Was all in vain?

O soul obscure,
Whose wings life bound
And soft death folded
Under the ground;

Wilding lady,
Still and true,
Who gave us Lincoln
And never knew,

To you at last
Our praise, our tears,
Love and a song
Through the nation's years!

Mother of Lincoln,
Our tears, our praise,
A battling
And the victor's bay!

—Harriet Monroe.

was in the mountains on the advice of five doctors, who said he had consump-

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

MANY a man is convinced that nothing but the jealousy of those above him has kept him from becoming a millionaire.

She is a jewel of a maid who can keep even with a borrowing neighbor.

Clothes have nothing to do with religion. Still, a woman does feel more devotional when she knows that her coat and hat are correct.

A man never knows how big a fool
he is until he runs against a close friend in a frank moment.

A woman finds out the depths of her foolishness when she has to set about curing the ill her chase after beauty has inflicted upon her.

A man who would scorn to steal his neighbor's umbrella unless it was raining will poison his dog because it howls nights.

Some women are mean enough to refuse to tell their next door neighbor what the neighbor across the street just said about her.

Before a reform can become popular it has to put up collateral as guaranty that it won't hurt business.

That Cruder Age.
Nothing serves better to illustrate the difference between the past and the present than the story of Sir Walter Raleigh laying down his coat that the queen might walk over a muddy crossing dry shod.

Queens nowadays do not go around as a small boy with a pair of rubber boots looking for mud puddles in which to wade.

A courtier to make a hit at the present time would have to run ahead of the queen's auto with a basket on his arm, picking up tacks and broken bits of glass. This would be some exercise—take it from Bill, the auto dodger.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Warning—A Jolly Game.

This is a fine game. Any number of boys can play it, one of whom is called the "cock," while the others are called "chickens." "Loose bounds" are made near a wall or fence, about four feet wide and twelve feet long. The cock takes his place within the bounds; the chickens stand about in various parts of the playground. The cock claps his hands together and cries:

Warning once! Warning twice!
A bushel of wheat, a bushel of rye,
When the cock crows out jump it!

He then crows and, keeping his hands still clasped before him, runs after the other players. When he touches one he and the player so touched immediately make for the bounds. The other players try to capture them before they get back, and if they succeed they are privileged to get on the backs of the cock and the chick and ride home. The cock and his chick then come forth again, hand in hand, and try to touch some other of the players. As soon as they do this they loose hands, and they and the player now touched run to the bounds as before, while the others try to catch them and secure a ride. The three now come out in the same manner. If while trying to touch the other boys the cock and his chicks loose hands before they have touched any one they may be ridden immediately if they are caught before reaching bounds.

Saved His Mother's Life.
"Four doctors had given me up," writes Mrs. Laura Gaines, of Avoca, La., "and my children and all my friends were looking for me to die, when my son insisted that I use Electric Bitters. I did so, and they have done me a world of good. I will always praise them." Electric Bitters is a priceless blessing to women troubled with fainting and dizzy spells, backache, headache, weakness, debility, constipation or kidney disorders. Use them and gain new health, strength and vigor. They're guaranteed

ANNOUNCEMENT

To Subscribers of The Greensboro Telegram And the General Public

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE GREENSBORO TELEGRAM is planning to give the readers of this paper a first-class Journal in keeping with the progress and advancement of the City, County and State, containing the current happenings at home and abroad. A regular Telegraphic News Service was inaugurated Saturday morning, April 1st. An arrangement has been made for a complete wire service covering the events of interest throughout the world. THE TELEGRAM'S new press has arrived and will be installed and put into operation as soon as possible. When the new press is put into service THE TELEGRAM will be Seven Columns wide—the standard size of the leading Dailies of the country. THE TELEGRAM will be bigger and better than ever.

The management believes that with these improvements, which are being made at a considerable outlay, and with the other improvements contemplated, and which will be made from time to time, THE TELEGRAM will be more valuable to the readers, and likewise to the advertising patrons. The management believes too that the readers of THE TELEGRAM will welcome an improved paper, and will be glad to pay an increased subscription price. It is not the desire of the management of this paper to impose an unreasonable price upon its readers; but the simple desire is to make the paper compare favorably with the leading Dailies of the State, and put the subscription price on an average with the others—in other words to put it on a basis in a measure commensurate with the improved paper.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES TO BE INCREASED MAY 1st, 1911

Beginning May 1st, 1911, the subscription price of THE GREENSBORO TELEGRAM will be $5.00 per year, 10 cents per week, delivered by carrier to any address in Greensboro or sent by mail to any Post Office or Rural route in the United States, Canada, Mexico or Cuba.

Special Subscription Offer To Old and New Subscribers:

Old subscribers may by paying their subscriptions to date and $3.00 in addition, at any time prior to May 1st, 1911, have THE TELEGRAM continued to their present address or sent to any other address until May 1st, 1912.

Prospective or new subscribers may upon payment of $3.00, at any time prior to May 1st, 1911, have THE TELEGRAM sent to their address until May 1st, 1912. The Inducements England once held out to suitable men to join the ranks of the light dragoons, as given in the following passage taken from the London Times of Sept. 25, 1901, were certainly strong. Those willing to join are informed that they "will be mounted on the finest horses in the world, with superb clothing and the richest accoutrements. Your pay and privileges are equal to 2 guineas a week. You are everywhere respected. Your society is courted. You are admired by the fair, which, together with the chance of getting switched to a buxom widow or brushing with a rich heiress, renders the situation truly enjoyable and desirable. Young men out of employment or otherwise uncomfortable, there is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." Nick it and instantly apply to the above."

Long Lived Dancers.

Louis XIV., who granted L'Academie de Danse of Paris its charter, strongly advocated dancing, for he considered it an aid to develop dexterity and deportment and adapt men for a warlike career. It would be somewhat exacting today to require recruits to take dancing lessons, but dancing seems to produce longevity, judging from the long life enjoyed by any of the aristocracy of the profession. Vestris lived to be eighty, his son reached the age of 102, and one of his sons attained ninety years. Pettit, who died in 1898, reached eighty years, and a brother passed away at 100. Petersburg wanting five years of a century, while the brother of Louis Merante, who was well known at the opera, died in 1902 at Rouen, having reached the age of 102.

The Little Fat Boy.

The soup came in, and the soup was good. The little boy gobbled as fast as he could, and I frowned reproach, as an uncle should. He blew the fish with its sauce of pink. "The boy say 'Yes' to it? I don't think! A cherry a thing that a child should drink?" came the turkey sausage flanked, slyly broasted and stoutly shanked. The boy came twice. Why are boys not spanked? If you wanted it. That boy didn't want it twice, the untanned kid! He caught his eye, and he drooped one eye. He came the pudding, a blaze of blue. He ate the eyes of the fat boy grew. He piled his plate, and he went right through. He ate next. He disposed of three, he ate a fourth to his shameless knees, he ate for an apple and grinned at me. He ate dinner his steps I tracked. Waistcoat buttons were all intact. The tale I've told is a simple fact.

Foolish Diogenes.

"Hello, Diogenes! What are you looking for?"
"I am looking for an affinity," returned the gloomy Greek with the dark lantern attachment.
"Oh, you are silly!"
"Silly! I?"
"Yes, you."
"I would have you know I am the wise man of all time."
"Not on your moving picture film, Oogie. To look for an affinity you want to meander forth with a motorcar and a bank roll big as your barrel."

Unhappy Man.

Who reads all the books that are written
Or putting it plain, that are wrote?
The patient proofreader gets bitten
Or stung. That poor chap is the goat.

Reason For It.

"Mrs. Jones is so charming. And I notice that she always laughs heartily at her husband's jokes."
"Yes; she believes in boosting business."
"Business?"
"He draws a salary for jokemaking."
Progress.
"Dr. Jones is a fine man."
"He is that. We used to have him for our doctor when we were poor."
"You don't have him any more?"
"Oh, goodness, no; we have a physician now."

The Perversity of Things.

"I never could get what I want."
"Then change your program."
"How do you mean?"
"Want what you get."
"I haven't got it in for myself that bad."

Unromantic.

Just how they got acquainted I never understood.
Both were as shy and bashful as children of the wood.
She had forgotten thirty.
Had never had a beau.
And he, though some years older.
Had been in love as slow.
For more than twenty seasons He had in his sly way Been getting up his courage The fateful word to say.
She had been quite as busy In looking for a swain And never quite succeeded In getting one to train.
But when they came together, I know not how nor where, Dan Cupid wasn't needed The settings to prepare.
It wasn't of their seeking, For that they were too shy, Chance threw them in position. The rest was just like pie.
They were, as I remember, As homely to my mind As any living couple.
That one in search would find, Which shows you quite as clearly As any words could frame.
More people would get married. Would chance just boost their game.

Ed. C. Caton is Once More in Clutches of Law

Charlotte, March 31.—Ed. C. Caton, whose conditional pardon upon a serious charge was revoked by Gov. W. W. Kitchin March 16, and who was allowed ten days in which to answer allegations made by Sharon township people who were his neighbors, has been arrested in South Carolina and was brought to Charlotte this afternoon in an automobile driven by the son of Sheriff Wallace. He was just across the line, so it was stated, in the Palmetto State, when he was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Porter who had had knowledge of his whereabouts for two days.
Caton is the man upon whose land a chicken fight occurred some weeks ago and who was arrested with a score or more of others for a violation of the law. He was convicted, with the others, before Magistrate Cobb, but escaped with a slight fine. Immediately afterwards his neighbors circulated petitions, signed freely by all, asking that the governor revoke the conditional pardon granted almost a year ago to the man. These petitions set forth that Caton had not only violated the pardon by participating in and aiding and abetting the chicken fight on a Sabbath, but that he had done other things against the laws of the county and state.
Governor Kitchin waited several days after receiving the papers from the people of Sharon, Sardinia, Ebenezer and Carmel neighborhoods in Sharon township before he acted. Then he issued an order to the sheriff or any lawful officer of Mecklenburg county to arrest Caton and to force him to answer the accusations. In the event he did not comply with the order to arrest within ten days, so stated the order, he should be deemed guilty and would have to serve out the unexpired sentence of his term of 18 months on the public chain-gang. Inasmuch as the order was issued on the 16th, and more than ten days have elapsed since its issuance, it is taken for granted that Caton has violated its provisions and may not now have an opportunity to present his case to any court of inquiry.

CURTAIN GOES DOWN ON LIBEL SUIT AGAINST NEW YORK WORLD
Washington, March 31.—The curtain was rung down today on the Panama libel suits against The New York World and Indianapolis News when United States Attorney Wilson requested permission of Justice Wright, in criminal court No. 1, to enter a nolle pros. The United States Supreme court had decided the cases in favor of the defendants.

The indictments nolle prossed today charged that the newspapers libelled President Taft, former President Roosevelt, Charles P. Taft and William Nelson Cromwell, when they published a statement that in the purchase of the Panama canal $40,000,000 had been made by the syndicate which bought it from the French owners and transferred the property to the United States.

Not So Fattening.
"I don't believe in casting pearls before swine."
"Why not?"
"Why not?"
"Aren't they cheaper than corn?"

Case With Most of Us.
"I have to work for a living."
"What do you do with it when you get it?"
"Just keep on working."

Political Economy.
"Do you believe in reciprocity?"
"Depends whether I kiss the girl for politeness or because I want to."

One Theory.
"Homely people are generally good."
"They have to have some excuse for living."

Great Expectations.
Back to the farm! Thus runs the hopes Of butcher man and clerk,
Of those who do not know the ropes Nor understand the work.
They think, poor, misdirected souls, If they could get a hoe,
And drop some corn in little holes That wealth to them would flow.

They see the pictures in the books, The outlines on the map,
And from their point of view it looks As though it were a snap.
They read of men who rest their feet In autos every day,
Who make their money selling wheat And corn and oats and hay.

They read about the simple life Of raising calves and colts,
Far from the city's care and strife And special brand of jots.
They read of men who rest their feet In autos every day,
Who make their money selling wheat And corn and oats and hay.

To wake them up would be a shame, Nor is there any need.
It may be they will learn the game And in the end succeed.
But as they journey toward the hay So very free of guile
Those who have made their get-aways Cannot suppress a smile.

With Devoe $30 With other Paints $50

Two Houses—Same Size

When you paint your house bear in mind what a gallon costs, $5; look out for your gallons.

Shut your eyes to everything else but gallons. Look out for nothing but gallons.

Example

10 gallons another paint, put-on costs	$50
6 " Devoe, " "	30
Devoe saves $20

And the paint that takes 6 gallons will wear a third longer than the paint that takes 10. Look out for the gallons.

President To Open D. A. R. Congress.
Washington, D. C., April 1.—The Continental Congress of the D. A. R., which meets here on April 17-22, will be formally received by President and Mrs. Taft at the white house Wednesday afternoon, April 9, and along with other members of the organization and of the Sons of the American Revolution by Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the D. A. R., on Monday evening, April 17th.

Upwards of 1,200 delegates are expected to the congress.

Sure Sign.
Him—Mary! You have been kissed before!
Her—What makes you think so?
Him—You knew enough to scream.—Toledo Blade.

An Optimist.
"What an optimist Green is!"
"Yes; every time he loses his umbrella he never worries. He always expects to pick up a better one."—Detroit Free Press.

Doubtful.
"What is your boy learning at college?"
"I don't know. I can only tell you what he is studying."—Springfield Republican.

The Reason.
"He's a great social favorite."
"No wonder. He can eat anything made in a chafing dish as if he enjoyed it."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HUMOROUS QUIPS

Ough.
Jacques loves the English tongue, although
He finds the spelling tough.
And when he does not really know
He does a little blough.
And spells the termination sough,
Making the queerest stough.

For when he tries himself to plough
His way with trouble through
The words he jotted down but nough
He finds it will not dough.
He gazes stupid as a cough
And fails to find a plough.

When back across the channel's trough
He sails, as pale as dough,
He fears his countrymen will scough
To see his spelling sough.
Even in French a little ough
And hardly come a plough.

Flights of Fancy.
Bishop Weldon's story of the babu
Who said a certain town was "three miles away, as cock crowed," reminds a correspondent of the obliging Frenchman who helped him to pick out places from the Alpine viewpoint at Lyons. Some of the party understood the Frenchman to say that a place was so many miles off "as the cow flies"—though actually he had only pronounced "grow" to rhyme with
"now."—London Chronicle.

A Stone's Throw.
"The ancient Romans had a catapult that could hurl rocks more than a mile."
"Now I understand it."
"What?"
"My landlord told me this house was a stone's throw from the depot. He must have had it on his hands since the time of the Caesars."—Cleveland Leader.

An Apprehension.
"What do you think of this idea of letting baseball players appear in vaudeville?"
"I don't know how it will work out," replied the fan, "but I'm afraid that when the season comes around some fellow will forget himself and start up a ballad when he ought to be sliding to second."—Washington Star.

Will This Be Necessary?
"Yes, and what are all those war vessels over there?"
"That's the north Atlantic auxiliary fleet."
"What's the good of it?"
"Why, its only use is to provide safe landing places for the aeroplanes."—
Cleveland Plain Dealer.

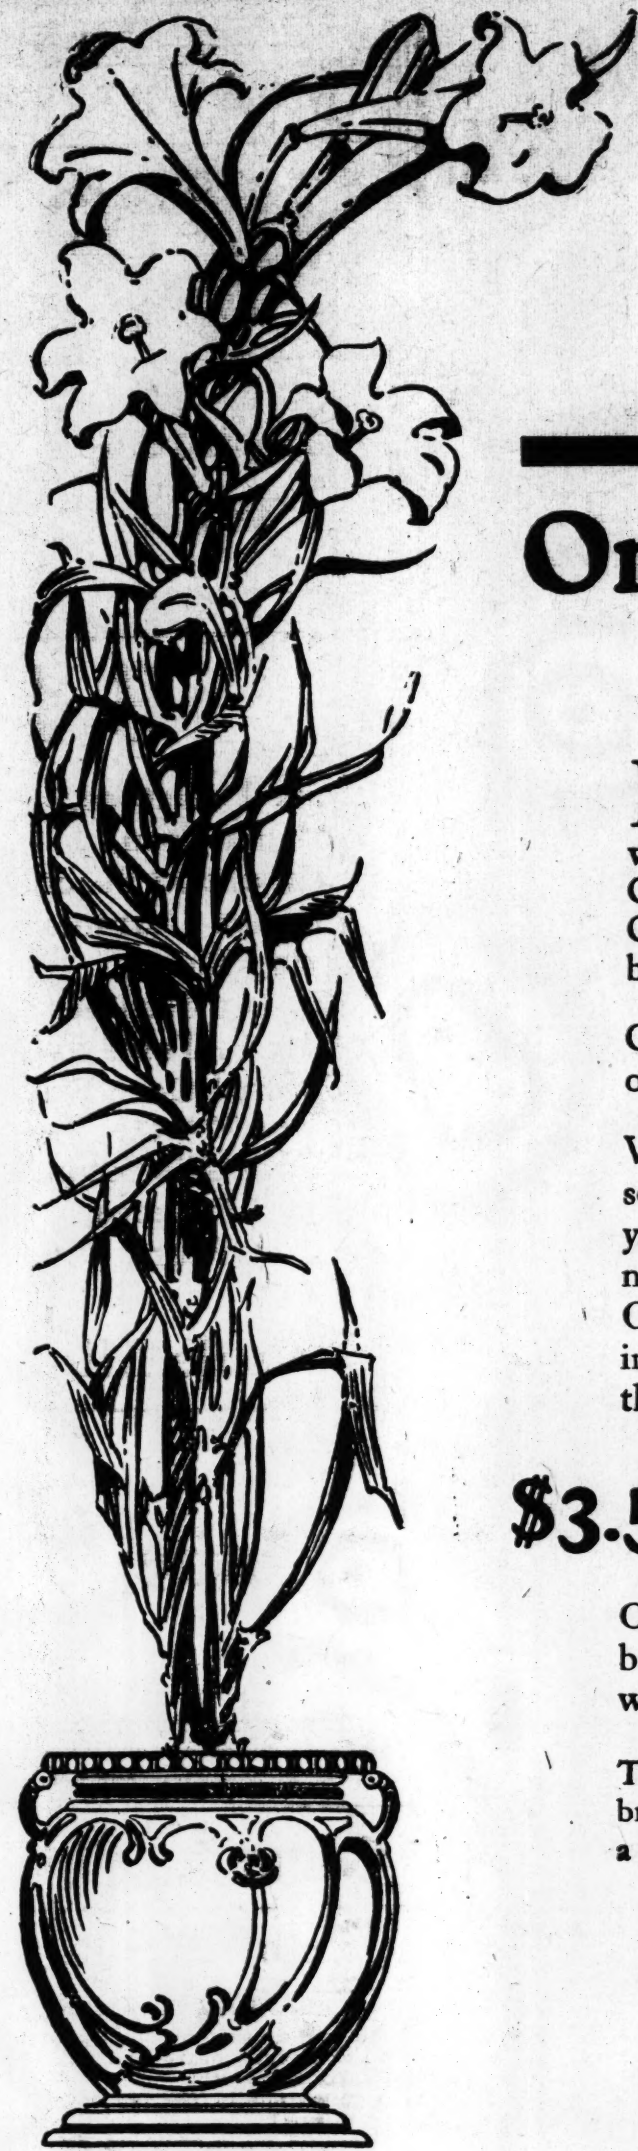

Both Compatible.
"I hear that Dickie has his business in a hole."
"Why, I heard he was making money at it."
"So he is. You see, his business is digging sewers."—Baltimore American.

Friend of the Family—What? All these animals going into the ark, and yet you say the people aren't wise to what's doing!
Noah—Sure not. They think we're an American battleship taking on massachusetts—Puck.

The Negotiations.
"Did Lord Luvous propose for your daughter's hand?"
"No," replied Mr. Cumrox, "but he gave me to understand that he'd be willing to consider bids from our family for the use of his ancestral name."

Faith.
"What is faith, Johnny?" asks the Sunday school teacher.
"Pa says," answers Johnny, "that it's readin' in the papers that the price of things has come down an' expectin' to find it true when the bills come in."—

George Westinghouse—Stand back and give me air.

Robert Browning—You know what I mean.

John Bunyan—I must have been dreaming.

Adam—Every man needs a wife, take it from me!

Sherlock Holmes—After you, Moriarty.

Prometheus—It's my liver that troubles me, I think.

Duke of Wellington—Come, come, Blucher; it's your move!—Chicago Tribune.

Real Economy.

A New England mother had come upon her eight-year-old son enjoying a feast whereof the components were jam, butter and bread.

"Son," said the mother, "don't you think it a bit extravagant to eat butter with that fine jam?"

"No, ma'am," was the response. "It's economical; the same piece of bread does for both."—Lippincott's.

Hurt Once Too Often.

At an inquest a doctor once stated that "two of the deceased's injuries were fatal, but fortunately the others were not." An Irish paper goes one better and describes how a "deaf man was run down by a tram and killed. He was injured in a similar way some years ago."—Black and White.

The Negotiations.

"Did Lord Luvous propose for your daughter's hand?"

"No," replied Mr. Cumrox, "but he gave me to understand that he'd be willing to consider bids from our family for the use of his ancestral name."—Washington Star.

The trouble with rich relations is that they are so few in number.

The person that never hears any gossip can't lay claim to a broad understanding of human nature.

When a man calls himself a fool he is always surprised that his friends take him so calmly.

It may be better to be good than to be good looking, if not so popular.

It is embarrassing to have the bridge club get on its bad behavior just the minute that the minister's wife drops in for her call.

That sleep is nature's true restorer doesn't comfort the baldheaded man.

An office girl's idea of a snap is a job where her duties consist of eating candy and answering the telephone.

Provided For.

"He has made hay."

"What do you mean?"

"Married a grass widow."

Fashion's Latest.

We read about the trousers skirt That puts the hobble in the shade. That will not gather up the dirt.

As those that with a train are made.

O woman, very lovely and Emancipated from man's thrall, Will you for such a garment stand Or in it stand at fashion's call?

Under Protest.

Old man Bilkins had made his money in the west, but when he moved to town for a life of ease the girls naturally wanted to get action on it.

"You'll never get me in one of them dress suits," he announced.

"But, pa, you have to dress like other folks."

"Not in that harness."

"Pa."

"Well, what is it?"

"Will we have to throw you and rope you to get you toggled out in the garb of civilization?"

Easy.

Fusion Ranks Beginning to Break.

Nashville, Tenn., March 31.—Speaker A. M. Leach, of the lower house of the Tennessee legislature, who was chosen speaker by independent democratic and republican votes, is out in a card today in which he says he has joined the regular democratic forces in support of the general election bill now pending in the house.

In the opinion of party leaders here the action of Mr. Leach indicates the beginning of the disruption of the fusionist ranks.

Black Hand Artists Busy.

New York, April 1.—Although writers of black hand threatening letters demanding $1,000 of an Italian storekeeper had neglected to specify where the money should be handed over, their threats of what would happen if the money was not received were carried out early today when a bomb was exploded in front of the tenement. The explosion shattered windows, cracked walls, blew down partitions and caused a panic among the hundreds of dwellers in the five-story building.

Duck Stone.
This game may be played by any number. A large stone is selected and placed on a particular spot, and the players first "pink for duck," which they do by throwing their stones up to the mark. The one whose stone is farthest from it becomes "duck." The duck places his stone on the large one, while the rest of the players return to the "bounds." Each one pitches his stone at that of the duck, endeavoring to knock it off. If any one succeeds in doing this duck must replace it, while the throwers pick up their stones and run to bounds. When duck has replaced his stone he runs after any of the other players, and if he manages to touch one of them that one becomes duck.

Women and Society

FADS OF THE FASHIONS.

Coats are made in every material, from rough tweeds and chevrons to satins.

Butterflies of white kid are made over and are placed at the side of a large hat.

The rope girdle is a favorite and outlines the high waist line of many a chiffon frock.

Trimmings of white, black and colored bands have taken a firm hold on the feminine fancy.

Metallic laces and trimmings are most effectively used to lighten the corsage of a dark gown.

Girdles are made of draped satin, heavy cords.

Many handsome reception and calling frocks of velvet are trimmed with a combination of fur and lace.

A charming ribbon has a background of white silk covered with a small tapestry design in dull colors.

"Sparkle" embroidery is made from colored spangles and sequins and is used effectively on black velvet or net.

Silk and satin flowers, each petal edged with beads, are used on the crown and under the brim of an evening hat.

A trio of smart and practical hats for children's school wear includes a felt of good quality with velvet band and bow at one side. The upturned brim is pierced with a jaunty quill. Colors are solid navy or solid cardinal, also black with red velvet and red quill.

A fine soft French felt is the second on the list. It has a wide brim and medium crown, and it is trimmed with ribbon. Colors are red or navy blue.

The third model is a round hat of stiff felt draped around the crown with Persian silk. This decoration is finished with a knot of velvet in self color.

HOME TRIMMINGS OF HATS

(By Mrs. George Brandt Winthrop.)

The trimming of hats is both simple and fascinating once one has sufficiently mastered the art to achieve successful results. This chat, we must say before going any further, is not intended for women whose natural artistic tendencies are so strong in that direction that they seem to put each thing in the right place as if by magic, for artists in any branch of art or craft need little or no training. The following hints and advice are intended for those—and they form the majority—who, in greater or lesser degree, possess aptitudes to be cultivated.

The making of a shape or frame is an art in itself. Some women find it more satisfactory to make this themselves, as they can bend it to suit their fancy. But in that case it is always better to have a few practical lessons from experts, and we are dealing with home millinery, taking as granted that one buys ready made a pretty felt or straw becoming to the wearer.

The placing of the bandeau is an essential item, the importance of which cannot be too much emphasized. The effect of the prettiest trimming is lost if the hat keeps swaying from one side to the other. It should never be sewn on straight off, but only attached with pins or loose tucks, and tied on till the hat holds on the head without the help of hat pins. Time spent on this is never wasted, as it really is the foundation on which the whole success depends.

Extremes in fashion should be avoided in hats as carefully as in dress by any woman of good taste. The great thing when planning the trimming is to have clear before you the style of dress with which it is going to be worn. For instance, a plain morning hat will never look suitable with an elaborate afternoon frock, however becoming and well devised these be separately.

The contour of the face, complexion and hair should be taken into consideration. In a general way it may be said that large hats suit round faces, and small hats oblong ones. Purple, though a warm, artistic shade, makes a pale complexion look paler, and is to be recommended to those who are inclined to have rather too much color, or, at any rate, own very pink cheeks. Quiet colors are always safe, but a bright touch is by no means to be avoided if this is artistically arranged. Sea green or black or bright red cerise on certain shades of gray are effective and delightful mixtures. Never overtrim a hat, simplicity being always to be aimed at. In the same way as when arranging flowers, each one should stand out from the other. A hat should never be packed with ribbons, flowers and wings, or the effect will be deplorable, though it will become at once stylish and becoming if half of the ornaments are taken off.

Always be well provided with long pins, which are more convenient than a needle and tucking cotton. Never sew each piece of trimming separately, as it is impossible to judge of the right place of a wing, rosette or flower before you have well in mind how the whole thing is going to look when completed. Plain black is always serviceable as well as suitable. If the hat is worn in the rain and fog nothing is more advisable than a natural cock feather, for this, not having gone through the same preparation as artistically colored ones, look as good as new when dry, even if they have been drenched through by a heavy downpour of rain.

Civic Department Plans Spring Cleaning Week.

At a meeting of the civic department of the Woman's Club yesterday afternoon it was decided to have a spring cleaning week, beginning April 10. The plans for the occasion were discussed at length and if carried out as outlined will mean much for the civic improvement of the city. The details of the cleaning program will be announced within the next few days. It will be remembered that a week was set apart last spring for the cleaning of the city and hundreds of loads of trash and rubbish were hauled off by the city wagons. As a result the city was cleaner than it had been in years.

Annual Meeting Woman's Club.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Club was held yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the library, the reports of the retiring officers being of a most encouraging nature. The Elks, she stated, had on numerous occasions befriended the club and the order had paid the salary of the district nurse for the past year and it was only just that the members should do something to help make the fair a success.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

Mrs. Mary Petty, president.
Mrs. Dorian Blair, first vice president.
Mrs. E. Sternberger, second vice president.

Mrs. Mary Crawford, recording secretary.

Mrs. J. J. Stone, treasurer.

Mrs. A. Fairbrother, corresponding secretary.

Delegates to the meeting of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs, which will be held in Asheville May 2-5, were elected as follows: Mrs. Mary Crawford, Mrs. Andrew Joyner, Mrs. A. Fairbrother; alternates, Mrs. F. P. Marshall, Mrs. C. W. Tenny.

April Term Court Opens Here Monday

The regular April term of Guilford criminal court will convene tomorrow morning, Judge F. A. Daniels, of Goldsboro, presiding, and Solicitor S. M. Gattis, of Hillsboro, prosecuting. There are about forty cases on the docket, a large number being merely continuances. There are less than half a dozen cases of importance on the docket and the docket will likely be cleared by Thursday.

The case against Moses Speaks, who is charged with murdering his wife and son-in-law, will probably be called tomorrow and, unless it is decided to have a lunacy commission sit on his case, a day set for the trial. Speaks' defense will be insanity. There is also a case against W. H. Taylor, charging embezzlement. Another case of interest is one against Phil Oppleman, the charge being receiving stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen.

Judge Daniels will also hear the argument of counsel in the injunction proceedings instituted by the Sealship Oyster System Company against C. Scott & Co. This case will be of considerable interest throughout the entire state.

La Fayette Lost to University Team

Special To Telegram.

Chapel Hill, April 1.—Carolina defeated Lafayette this afternoon by the decisive score of eight to two. The heavy stick work of the Carolinians turned the trick. They awaited the sphere beautifully in a game that was full of interest from start to finish.

Leading Up to It.

"Gran'ma?"
"What is it, pet?"
"You're pretty old, ain't you?"
"Yes, dear, grandma is very old."
"An' will you die after a while, an' won't I never see you any more?"
"I fear so, my child—very soon, now!"
"Oh, gran'ma! When I die, too, c'n I be buried close beside you?"
The old lady was so affected that she could not speak—she only clasped the innocent prattler to her breast. Her emotions so overcame her that she could scarcely comprehend the next sweet query:
"Gran'ma, will you please gimme a penny?"

Scientific.

"Black strikes me as a very repellent man."
"Naturally. What he knows is negative, and what he thinks he knows is positive, and they set up action in different directions."
"Then he ought to electrify his friends."

Mean Thing!

"John proposed last night, dear," said Ethel to Maud.
"And is your wrist strained?"
"Why should it be?"
"An accident might have happened when you fell over yourself accepting him."

The Old Reliable.
"Radium is the new elixir of life."
"What does it cost?"
"Only $40,000,000 an ounce."
"I'll stick to pie."

Elusive.

The ever changing ocean
Is full of charms and fish;
But, oh, the former doesn't make
An appetizing dish!

Poor Crop.

John Bull calls across to Uncle Sam by wireless:
"How's your crops, uncle, this season?"
"Ain't started to raise nothing yet but the Maine."

Mr. Tightwad.

"She earns every cent she spends."
"Does she really?"
"Yes."
"The clever thing! How?"
"By getting it out of her husband."

Curious.

"He forgot he was married."
"What?"
"I said he forgot he was married."
"How did he accomplish it?"

Hard Task.

"What is your idea of a good cook?"
"One who can get up a dollar dinner out of a quarter's worth of material."

Missed His Opportunity.

"He was born great."
"Maybe, but he hasn't lived up to it."

Not Necessarily.

The person with a purpose high
Is not, let me explain,
The one who ventures toward the sky
All in an aeroplane.
He meets his majesty the devil
And fights him on a lower level.

PATRIOTS ONLY LIGHT
LUNCH FOR BEAN EATERS

It Was Awful the Way the Big Boys From Boston "Chawed up" Doyle's Bunch---Patriots are Getting in Form, However, and will Show up Better Monday.

About a thousand fans went out to Camp park yesterday afternoon to see the Greensboro Patriots buck the Boston Nationals. Despite the score of 34 to 0 the fans declared that they got their money's worth for the Boston men surely did hit the ball. Manager Doyle's bunch put up a plucky fight despite the odds against them, several of the players doing some good work.

This was Greensboro's initial game and the players were sadly lacking in team work. However, a double play was pulled off in the seventh inning. Rickard to Stewart. The catching of Stewart and his pegging to second was the feature of the game. Doyle on second did good work and made one or two good pickups. It was evident that when the team has a little more practice it will be impossible for a man to steal second on Stewart and Doyle. Fuller, who usually holds down the initial sack, was not in the game and Rickard, who played center last year, held down the sack. Carroll was in center and did good work. The outfield was quite swift, though left fielder Hoyt was charged up with several errors.

The Boston men are big, husky fellows and look able to chase around the bases with a Greensboro player under each arm. They know how to wield the willow and had fine success in their efforts to place the horsehide where there was no one to receive it. In the second inning fourteen runs were piled up as a result of five two baggers, four singles, a home run, two wild pitches and three bases on balls.

Brown, who twirled for Boston, held the Greensboro boys down to four hits, two singles and two two-baggers. Horner and Stewart drove out the two-sackers. Brown also secured three two base hits, and a single out of six times at bat. Eldridge twirled for an inning and a half, being relieved by Jones who did but little better. Fisher took charge in the fifth. The slab artists were helpless before the big leaguers and the ball was swatted at will. Miller a big right fielder sent the horsehide flying over the left field fence and brought in two men before him.

The Boston men have been hard at work training and throughout the game some of the players were out in the far outfield practicing running and sliding for the bases under the direction of a coach. There were just three dozen in the lot, not including the press agent, who sent a detailed account of the game to headquarters.

Play Giants Monday.

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the Greensboro boys will play the New York Giants. The team will be in better condition than on yesterday as the players will practice on team work during the morning hours. It was a noticeable fact that the longer they played yesterday the better the team worked. Matthewson will twirl for three or more innings for the visitors and Rube Eldridge will endeavor to put in some effective curves for the local bunch.

The score by innings in yesterday's game follows:

R. H. E.

Boston . . . 3 14 2 1 4 0 5 0 5 34 33 3

Greensboro . . . 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 4 9

OLD CAROLINA MEN ARE MAKING GOOD

Several Spars of the League Last Season Showing Up Well In Their Promoted Positions.

Charlotte, April 1.—Red Smith will report to the Nashville team in the Southern League and the promise is that he will stick to that fast company. He has been turned back to that club by the major league club by whom he was drafted at the close of the season last fall.

Brent and Midkiff, the two leading players on the lineup of the Twins last season, are both with the Columbus club in the American Association and both have good possibilities for holding their positions in that pace.

Fred Derrick, drafted by the Toledo Club in the American Association, has already reported and is stationed at first base. Reports indicate that he will abide in that fast selection of talent.

Noojin, drafted by Cincinnati last fall has been ordered to report to the Reds. It was first thought that the crack centerfielder would not be asked to come in for practice, but the management of the team has decided to give him a trial on the recommendations received as to Noojin's native ability as well as his record in this company.

The men who were either sold or drafted to higher leagues from the Carolina Association last season stand a chance of sticking to their new and promoted positions, thus witnessing to the fact that unusually clever baseball talent is being developed in this neck of the woods.

WHITSETT THIS WEEK.

Whitsett, N. C., April 1.—There will be two fine games of baseball here on the home grounds this week. On Monday, April 3, Bingham school will play her strong team and on Friday, April 7, Trinity Park School of Durham will be here with her heavy outfit. This will ensure two fine games. The Whitsett team is in fine trim and will make it interesting for the visitors. Large crowds are expected.

ANDERSON PLAYERS
GETTING TOGETHER

The following from The Anderson Mail concerning the men signed by Manager Kelly for the Anderson team will be of interest to local fans.

"Final arrangements are now being made for sending out transportation to the members of the Anderson baseball team for the coming season. A list of the players signed, together with their addresses, has been received by Mr. Furman Smith from Manager Kelly at Clinton and transportation will go forward to them within the next day or so. The players are to report at Clinton for the first training, remaining there until April 20th, when they will come on here for a week's work-out before the opening on April 27th.

"The complete list of the players signed is as follows:

O. W. Hartley, Kokomo, Ind.; Walter Pisarski, Scranton, Pa.; H. L. Hayes, New Castle, Ind.; Patrick Finn, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Harry Adams, St. Augustine, Fla.; Frank Salinger, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Frank Brannon, Plains, Pa.; John Buskirk, Larksville, Pa.; Edward McEnroe, Drifton, Pa.; James Anthony, Ashley, Pa.; William Kelly, Newark, N. J.; C. Bing Farmer, Allendale, S. C.; Chug Coombs, Thomasville, Ga.; Ben Lark, Pelzer, S. C.; Bill Klock, and Earl Clark, both of this city, and Winn, McCown and Hammett all of Clinton.

"Klock, Clark, Hartley, Pisarski, Hayes and Finn are to report at Clinton on April 5th, joining Winn, McGowan and Hammett, who are already there, and the others of the men signed are to arrive at Clinton on April 10th. Most of these men are pitchers, and Kel's idea in having them report early, is in order that Klock, who is a veteran catcher may have a fair chance at testing them for what they have. Bill is anxious to get in the game, and the young pitchers are going to be made to toe the line.

"After the whole of the squad has reported and had a few days' work out, there will be almost daily games with the team of Clinton College. This was one of the arguments presented by Kelly in having the men report there. He figured it out that both the teams would be benefited. Kel gets through at Clinton on April 15th, but will remain there, looking after the interests of both the teams until the 20th. After that his address will be at Anderson."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Kohler, Michigan's Great Weight Thrower.

That Michigan is developing a weight thrower of unusual ability has been demonstrated by the work of Kohler in his recent track practice. The big freshman is heaving the ball far beyond Captain Horner, having achieved a mark of 46 feet 2 inches. That mark is beyond the intercollegiate records and not so very far from world's marks, so that it seems more than probable that Kohler will develop into a record breaker as did his predecessors at Michigan, Coe and Rose.

As the freshman phenom did better with the hammer and discus during his preparatory days than with the shot he gives promise of great performances when he can get outdoors. While Kohler will not be eligible for varsity competition this season, he will probably be sent east to compete in some of the open meets.

Tod Sloane Again In Racing Game. Theodore W. Myers, formerly comptroller of the city of New York, has joined the list of patrons of the turf. He will race a string of twenty-two thoroughbreds in Belgium next summer. His string of racers is made up of some of the best bred horses in England and will compete for the rich prizes of the European race courses.

Tod Sloane, once the premier jockey of America and England, will act as "advisory manager" to the stable. Myers had one or two horses racing in England and on the continent last season, but this is his first big effort to win renown on the turf with a large stable of horses. The success that he achieved in 1910 caused him to plan a campaign on a large scale.

Smith to Coach Pennsylvania. Andrew T. Smith has been elected head coach of the 1911 University of Pennsylvania football squad by the football committee. Smith has coached the Red and Blue teams for two seasons with success. The committee also recommended to the university committee on athletics that no graduates from another college be permitted to represent Pennsylvania in any major sport, but that they be allowed to play on minor sport teams.

Wrestling Manager Making Money. Jack Curley, manager of George Hackenschmidt, is said to guarantee the "Russian Lion" $20,000 for a four months' tour and then clears up something like $25,000 for himself. Jack Herman, manager of Zbyszco, is reported to guarantee the Polish wrestler nearly as much and last year was said to have made $35,000.

Plan Greatest Trout Fishing Grounds. The Ulster County (N. Y.) Game Protective association plans to have the greatest trout fishing grounds in the country. It expects to secure 350,000 fish, and it is predicted that the sport will get better each year, as the association will give a lot of time to protecting the streams which it is about to stock.

Americans to Golf Abroad. Two prominent American golfers will compete in the amateur championship tournament of Great Britain to be held at Prestwick. Fred Herreshoff and J. G. Anderson are the golfers who will make the trip. They are expected to sail late in April.

Wesleyan Students Want Boxing. For the first time in the history of Wesleyan academy, a Methodist New England institution that has been in existence for half a century, the students are making an effort to place boxing on the athletic curriculum.

Towns New Souling Champion. Jack Towns, a brother of George, won the amateur sculling championship of New South Wales, just decided. Young Stanbury was a competitor.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. IT CURES Rheumatism and Blood Diseases
The cause of rheumatism is excess uric acid in the blood. To cure rheumatism this acid must be expelled from the system. Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. Rubbing with oils and liniments may ease the pain, but they will not cure rheumatism than pain will change the fiber of rotten wood.

Two Life Lines

They Diverged, but Finally Met

By T. EDWARDS ARMSTRONG
Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I have often thought that if we could see the thread of a human life laid down on paper—a sort of diagram such as is used in meteorology—we would realize how much fate has to do with one's career. Place down on this map the lives of two persons starting from exactly the same point, and what a difference will occur when circumstances throw the one downward and the other upward.

Until I was seven years old life was pleasant to me. Then came a succession of disasters. My father died a bankrupt, and within a month my mother followed him to the grave. My sister Lucy, three years my senior, and I were sent to an orphan asylum. One day a lady came to the asylum looking for a girl to adopt. She chose Lucy, who went away with her. It was a dreadful blow to me to be separated from my sister, but children of that age are twice easily bent to cling to anything that offers. So I soon learned to rely on others, but I never forgot Lucy.

When I grew old enough to do anything for myself I was discharged from the asylum. It seems cruel to turn a boy of thirteen out upon the world, but it is more cruel to refuse admission for want of room and funds to one of a still more tender age. I was given a little money and told to shift for myself. I bought some newspapers and sold them on the street. I lived as such boys live; but, having come from more refined stock than they, the life was more distasteful to me. A gentleman whom I used to wait for on a corner in the morning to sell him a paper asked me one day how I would like to go into his house as a boy of all work. I told him I would do anything to get off the street. So he took me home with him and gave me some good clothes. I became a sort of assistant in the kitchen, answered bell calls at the door and did errands.

WILL JONES

"SHE THREW HER ARMS ABOUT ME."
I was fifteen and quite tall when I went into Mr. Spingler's service. Before very long he made me a butler of me. My drift thus made me a servant. Had the Spingler family been unkind to me, possibly I might have gone out again for a fresh start while I was still young. But they were very kind to me, and this kept me in my position till I was eighteen years old. Helen Spingler, a lovely girl several years younger than I, became interested in me, I having made certain references to her concerning pleasures I remembered having enjoyed before my parents died. I returned her sympathy for me by loving her. Soon after making the discovery of this love I told her father that he must get another butler. He wondered why I wished to leave, but I would not tell him. Of course I never spoke a word of love to Helen.

Within two years I occupied several places. Then I secured one as butler in the family of a very rich young couple who had just been married. I was engaged by the wife, who took especial care to instruct me in the duties pertaining to a situation in the home of enormously rich people. She was very gentle with me and if I made any mistakes refrained from scolding me. Indeed, Mrs. Trevor was so kind and my wages were so satisfactory to me that I hoped I would remain in her service for the rest of my natural life. Her husband was also an excellent man and never gave me an order without saying "please," and I never served him that he didn't say "thank you."

One day the postman left a letter which had been addressed to some one who did not live in the house. I would have given it back to him had he not hurried away. My attention was arrested by the name on the envelope. It was "Miss Lucille Deering."

Now, my name is George Deering, and my sister's name, I remembered, was Lucy. I took the letter on a salver to my mistress and observed her as she looked at it. To my surprise, she opened and read it.

"What's the matter with you, George?" she asked, looking up at me. I had dropped the salver and caught at the back of a chair. "Nothing, ma'am," I replied, "only a little dizziness."

Children's Guessing Party.

A mother who wished to entertain school children gave a guessing party that was rather out of the usual run.

Boys and girls were invited for an evening with celebrities and their haunts. Nothing more explicit was said, so the young people were eager to know what was in store.

After being received by the hostess the party was ushered into a library, across one end of which was a huge white sheet. In a few minutes the room was darkened and a figure appeared dressed to represent Mrs. Jarley of the waxworks and in a witty speech announced the appearance of the celebrities.

She first distributed to each guest a card with pencil attached. These were lined and numbered to correspond with the celebrities to be shown.

In a few minutes a picture of Bluebeard was thrown on the sheet and thirty seconds given to guessing who he was.

The celebrities varied from heroes of fiction to monarchs, pugilists and football stars, noted actresses, poets, musicians, to well known places and buildings.

The pictures were made as different as possible, and when those that might be unfamiliar were given the showman elucidated it in a clever little speech.

At the end of the display the cards were numbered and passed in to a committee on awards. Each boy and girl having most correct guesses received a prize. There were also second and third prizes.

Such an entertainment is not hard to arrange if one can get the use of a lantern and some one to run it. It is essential to display the pictures rapidly. The slides can be rented, or if you have a collection of postals they can be made into slides at small cost.

A Good Idea.

A mother who has several active children that are frequently coming in with cut fingers or bleeding noses says that in two places in her household she keeps squares of cheesecloth about handkerchief size for such emergencies, as blood stains are hard to get out of handkerchiefs. Sometimes a week or more elapses before the ruin is brought to light, because small boys are indifferent to the welfare of linen and also because they occasionally find it desirable to hide all evidence of affairs in which they have been aggressors. After so many days even the useful chalk treatment has to be repeated several times before the ugly stains are removed, making unnecessary work for some one. So when a "roughhouse" seems to be in prospect and always at playtime during the football season her young hopefuls have their pockets filled with the cheesecloth squares, and only one good handkerchief is allowed "for show." So impressed are other mothers with the scheme that all the small boys of the neighborhood now go forth to play with this command ringing in their ears: "If your nose bleeds take the squares in your right hand pocket, remember."

New Officers of State Union of Christian Endeavor

Burlington, April 1.—The State Convention of Christian Endeavorers settled down to business this morning and accomplished much of real importance.

The quiet hour service was conducted by Rev. R. E. Steele, of Spencer, with "Christ My Friend." Following this Prof. W. A. Harper, of Elon College, the State president, read his annual report, showing many important advance steps taken during the year. Among other recommendations, which were adopted, were the following:

That a quarterly paper be started; that money be raised for the employment of a field secretary; that special work be undertaken among the negroes; and that the prison work department be re-established, with Mr. Burritt, of Raleigh, as superintendent.

The election of officers followed and Rev. R. E. Steele, of Spencer, was elected president, William C. Rourke, of Wilmington, first vice president, Miss Florence Ledbetter, of Greensboro, secretary, and Miss Mamie Bays, of Charlotte, treasurer. Nine denominational vice presidents were also elected.

Addresses were delivered by Rev. C. H. Hubbell, of Adrian, Mich., who is one of the "Live Wires" of the convention; Rev. C. E. Newman, of Henderson; Mrs. A. G. Dixon, of High Point, and General Secretary J. Van Carter, of the North Carolina Sunday School Association. A Junior Rally and a Model Christian Endeavor prayer meeting were features of the afternoon session.

The utmost enthusiasm prevails, and every one of the many delegates is having a good time. Over $200 was pledged for the state work, and the outlook is a bright one for the next year.

There are 150 societies in the state with over 4,000 members.

This year is the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor Society and will be marked by a mammoth national convention at Atlantic City in July.
